BIOGRAPHY

Rob Lewinson concentrates in complex commercial financing transactions, including commercial lending, corporate finance and public finance. Mr. Lewinson devotes a substantial portion of his practice to the representation of borrowers and financial institutions in connection with a wide variety of both single-lender and syndicated credit facilities, including leveraged acquisition loans, asset-based loans and cash-flow loans. Public and private offerings of high-yield and investment grade corporate debt, tax-exempt revenue bond transactions and economic development incentives financings also constitute an important part of his practice, as do workouts and debt restructurings in both the commercial lending and bond financing arenas. Mr. Lewinson also has extensive experience representing letter of credit banks and corporate trustees and has served as bond counsel and borrower counsel in connection with exempt small-issue bond financings, 501(c)(3) bond issues for hospitals and multi-family housing bond issues.

In addition to the domestic banking clients he serves, clients of Mr. Lewinson include manufacturing concerns, non-profit hospital systems, long-term care companies, medical device companies and other borrowers in the health care sector, and companies in the timber, high technology and hospitality industries.
