BIOGRAPHY

Isabella is a member of the firm's Class Actions and Mass Torts Practice Group. She focuses her practice on complex product liability, mass tort, commercial litigation, and appellate preservation matters. Isabella has experience representing businesses and other large entities in high-stakes mass tort litigation with a focus on legal and appellate issues.

Isabella earned her J.D. from Notre Dame Law School, where she served as an executive editor of The Journal on Emerging Technologies. While in law school, she also worked on trademark and copyright matters at the Notre Dame IP & Entrepreneurship Clinic. Isabella also holds an M.A. in European Studies from the Centre for Global Governance at KU Leuven, Belgium. During her time in Belgium, Isabella grew highly familiar with the EU regulatory framework and its nuanced effects on the global marketplace.
