BCLP ANNOUNCES PARTNERSHIP WITH LEGORA AI

Aug 07, 2025

International law firm BCLP is pleased to announce a significant partnership with Legora, a prominent legal artificial intelligence (AI) platform. This collaboration is designed to enhance BCLP's service offerings and streamline operational processes.

Legora was chosen following a successful pilot with over 100 lawyers across multiple practice areas and jurisdictions. Pilot areas included document review, due diligence, and legal drafting.

David Boulds, Global Director of Innovation at BCLP, said, "Our partnership with Legora signifies a substantial step forward in the use of AI technology at the firm. We are building on our deep experience in the application of AI to deliver real transformational change to our practice of law."

The pilot was conducted over several months, incorporating feedback from a diverse group of legal professionals. The results demonstrated significant improvements in efficiency, accuracy, and overall satisfaction among the participating lawyers.

One pilot member stated, "Legora has been tremendously useful and irreplaceable when it comes to working with large suites of documents – there is no other comparable tool that is capable of reading and analysing documents with that level of sophistication."

BCLP's Innovation team, in collaboration with the firm's Innovation Champions, will focus on integrating Legora further into the firm's legal workflows. Following an in-depth review, the Innovation team has identified numerous opportunities that can make a real difference in enhancing service delivery and delivering favourable outcomes for the firm's clients.

Dan Surowiec, Global Chief Information Officer at BCLP, added, "We are delighted to collaborate with Legora. This partnership will equip our teams with superior tools and insights, enabling us to better address our clients' needs in an increasingly complex legal landscape. Our objective is to remain at the forefront of legal technology, and this partnership underscores our commitment to this goal."

This partnership aligns with BCLP's commitment to business modernization, leveraging technology and investing in digital solutions to enhance efficiency and deliver superior client service.

Max Junestrand, CEO & co-founder of Legora, stated, “The feedback from BCLP’s extensive pilot has been exceptional, and we’re excited to continue collaborating closely with the firm on future innovations that will only enhance Legora’s unrivalled capabilities as the go-to platform for empowering legal professionals globally.”
