BIOGRAPHY

Aden Jones is an Associate with the firm's Litigations and Investigations practice group in the Seattle office. She began her career focusing on medical professional liability defense, licensing and disciplinary actions, and commercial/business litigation, advising healthcare professionals, hospitals, and other providers on healthcare litigation matters. Aden has experience representing insurance carriers and their insured clients in complex medical malpractice defense litigation matters, from pre-suit investigation through trial preparation, as well as in civil litigation and personal injury.

Aden earned her J.D. from Seattle University School of Law. While there, she served as a Notes and Comments Editor and Team Lead for Seattle University Law Review. She was also the Co-President of the Womxn's Law Caucus, a board member of the Alternative Dispute Resolution Board, a research assistant, and a member of the Environmental Law Society, Health Law Society, and Business Entrepreneurship Law Association. She received her B.A. from the University of Washington with majors in Law, Societies, and Justice and Political Science.
