JERRY HUNTER EXAMINES RECENT NATIONAL LABOR RELATIONS BOARD LITIGATION WITH LAW360

Nov 13, 2026

Jerry Hunter, senior counsel in BCLP's Employment and Labor practice, recently discussed National Labor Relations Board litigation involving Starbucks with Law360.

The article discusses how National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) litigation involving Starbucks is shrinking, though many cases remain unresolved.

In the article, Jerry described Starbucks as a "sitting target" for NLRB litigation because it has thousands of locations each run by managers who had little labor law experience.

Jerry was general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) in Washington, D.C., from 1989 until 1993. His practice involves representing management in all phases of labor and employment law, including preventive labor relations and supervisory training, labor arbitrations, handling charges filed with the NLRB, the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, U.S. Department of Labor, state and local civil rights agencies and cases filed in federal and state courts.
