Federal Reserve Board Expands Scope and Eligibility of Main Street Lending Program

On April 30, 2020, the Federal Reserve (the “Fed”) released additional details about the Main Street Lending Program (“MSLP”), and announced that it is expanding the scope of and eligibility for the program. Initially, the MSLP consisted of two loan facilities: (1) the Main Street New Loan Facility (“MSNLF”) and (2) the Main Street Expanded Loan Facility (“MSELF”). In response to public comment, the Fed created a third loan option, the Main Street Priority Loan Facility (“MSPLF”), and released updated term sheets (the “Term Sheets”)[1] and answers to frequently asked questions (the “FAQ”)[2].

U.S. Economic Stimulus Under the Main Street Lending Program

On April 9, 2020, the Federal Reserve (the “Fed”) announced that it is taking additional action to provide up to $2.3 trillion in loans to support the economy through various programs, including the Main Street Lending Program (“MSLP”). The Fed intends that the MSLP will ensure credit flow to small and mid-sized businesses by providing support to businesses that were in good financial standing prior to the COVID-19 crisis, on terms and conditions to be set by the Federal Reserve Board. Funds for MSLP were appropriated pursuant to Section 4027 of Title IV of the Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security Act (the “CARES Act”), and the program is being established under Section 13(3) of the Federal Reserve Act (12 U.S.C. § 344).
