BIOGRAPHY

Jason has substantial litigation experience, including in patent and trademark, trade secrets, and employee non-compete matters. He has represented various commercial clients across the country in a wide array of federal and state lawsuits. He has represented clients in patent matters involving diverse technologies, including GPS devices, e-banking, security systems, pet care products, and HVAC equipment, among others. He has extensive experience guiding cases through every stage of litigation including discovery, dispositive motions, trial, and appeal. Jason has also assisted clients in successfully navigating through various forms of alternative dispute resolution.

Jason also has been involved in various pro bono matters, including assisting nonprofits and individuals with intellectual property matters and contract disputes, and serving as lead counsel in a prisoner civil rights trial in federal district court.

Prior to joining the firm, Jason worked as a law clerk for the Honorable Catherine D. Perry, Chief Judge of the United States District Court, Eastern District of Missouri.
