Coe Jr., Ph.D , Faculty Director of the LLM Concentration in International Commercial Arbitration of Pepperdine University School of Law, The American Influence on International Commercial Arbitration: Doctrinal Developments and Discovery Methods, published by the Cambridge University Press, in its First Edition (Second Re-Print), forms part of the permanent collection of 587 leading law school and university libraries in the United States and throughout the world. Reviews have been published in the Revista de Arbitraje Comercial y de Inversiones, Vol. 2, P. 630 (2009); Universidad Complutense de Madrid (University of Madrid) (2008); the Global Arbitration Review (May 19, 2008); the Revista Brasileira de Arbitragem, Sumario Revista 20, Thomson-Aranzadi (2008); the New York Dispute Resolution Lawyer, pp. 73-74 , Vol. 3, No. 1 (Spring 2010); The American Review of International Arbitration, Vol. 20, No. 4 (2009); Lima Arbitration: Revista del Círculo Peruano de Arbitraje, pp. 182-183, No. 4 (2011); the University of Miami Law Review, Vol. 64, Issue 3 (April 2010); reviewed by Judge Thomas Logue The Florida Bar Journal, pp. 56, Vol. 95, No. 1 (Jan/Feb 2021); and reviewed by Sophie Nappert, Arbitrator, published in Transnational Dispute Management, Vol. 18, No. 3, (April 2021). Yuksel C, Eken C, "Book Review: The American Influence on International Commercial Arbitration: Doctrinal Developments and Discovery Methods, by Pedro J. Martinez-Fraga, eds, Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 2020, 474 pages" (2021) 41(1) PPIL 1. See link here. The Second Edition is earmarked to form part of the collection of the top 500 law libraries in the world, in keeping with the predecessor First Edition. The Second Edition has received numerous endorsements. Gary Born noted, "A thoughtful and provocative analysis of a very timely subject - replete with keen observations and original analysis." Professor Margaret Moses observed, "Pedro J. Martinez-Fraga's second edition of The American Influence on International Commercial Arbitration is a must-have addition to one's collection of books on international arbitration. Its thoughtful analysis of the common law development of different aspects of international arbitration leads to a depth of understanding and appreciation of complex issues that regularly arise in the field. Whether or not one agrees with all of Mr. Martinez-Fraga's conclusions, his insightful and rigorous analyses ensure that time focused on reading this book is time well-spent." Professor George Bermann stated, "The U.S. law of international commercial arbitration has commonly been viewed as less than fully coherent. This is regrettable, given the great importance of U.S. law in this field and its proper understanding, including from abroad. The first edition of The American Influence on International Commercial Arbitration admirably filled the gap, but galloping legal developments require a fresh account. Happily, with a second edition of the book, the gap remains once again admirably filled." Professor José E. Alvarez added, "Pedro Martinez-Fraga begins his masterful work on the United States' influence on international commercial arbitration with the original vision of arbitration suggested by Goya's painting "Duel with Clubs" in the Museo del Prado. The idea that arbitration is as blunt an instrument for 'dispute settlement' as two men using deadly force against each other – admittedly efficient, expedient, and final – has, he says, been eclipsed by the recognition that arbitration has much in common with judicial proceedings. His book is an argument, driven by a careful examination of history, case law, and statute, that the actions and views of common law courts has had much to do with this change. His is general (and rare) defense of what some would decry, namely the "Americanization" of international arbitration. Readers should welcome this new up-to-date edition. It continues to be a valuable contribution to a healthy, on-going debate." Sophie Nappert, an Arbitrator and contributing author to the Transnational Dispute Management says, "The author's stated aim is that of tracing doctrinal developments in the field of international commercial arbitration, one at a time, albeit these developments may "appear minute, virtually nonexistent as the imperfections of language, made even worse by flaws in reasoning and the visceral application of doctrine (often dogmatically), without engaging in the introspection and reflection that the subject matter addressed very much deserves and compels". The reader is left in no doubt of Martinez-Fraga's irresistible strength of conviction in the idea that international commercial arbitration, heady on its rise to prominence in modern times, runs the risk of cutting corners and manhandling "the brilliance and majesty of the common law in its developmental splendour". This is, unmistakably, the book of a scholarly pragmatist, for whom the promise of international arbitration still holds resonance and who identifies the threats to its legitimacy with accuracy and intelligence.
