AI and the Games - embracing a new age for sports

The Games have kicked off in true Parisian style and is promising to be a groundbreaking spectacle, not just for the inspirational athletic feats we are certain to see but also for the innovative use of artificial intelligence (AI) tools that will feature more prominently than ever before. These advancements are set to play a transformative role in the Games, enhancing athletes preparation for, and experience in, the Games as well as for spectators and viewers worldwide. We have taken a closer look at some of the use cases of AI in the Games.

Technology takes centre stage at UEFA Euros 2024

The UEFA Euro 2024 men's competition is reaching the business end of the tournament, with teams from across the continent battling it out in the knock-out stages to be crowned champion of Europe. In the second instalment of our Euros series (please see our article on the use of IP at Euro 2024), we are focusing on the advanced technology being used at the tournament - such as the deployment of connected ball technology and semi-automated offside technology to expedite the review process and improve the accuracy of VAR (Video Assistant Referee).
