

ANTITRUST CLASS ACTIONS

OVERVIEW

Our Antitrust Class Action Team defends industry leaders in antitrust class action litigation across the full spectrum of competition issues. We have litigated and tried as lead counsel numerous matters on behalf of a variety of Fortune 500 clients, including leading companies in the agricultural, technology, floor covering, health care, semiconductor, medical device, pharmaceutical, communications, defense and insurance industries.

These include allegations of price discrimination and arrangements among members of the same industry (including price-fixing, bid-rigging, group boycotts and information-sharing), monopolization and attempted monopolization (including predatory pricing, refusals to deal and product bundling), and resale restrictions (including pricing and customer and territorial restraints).

Team members have held senior positions with and have experience before federal antitrust enforcement agencies. We regularly provide antitrust advice to various national clients regarding state, federal and international antitrust and competition laws.

Embrace Tradition, Reject Modernity? Recent FTC and DOJ Deal Challenges Show Preference for Traditional Antitrust Theories of Harm

Both the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) and Department of Justice (DOJ) Antitrust Division have now brought cases challenging deals under President Trump's administration. In many respects, the theories of harm alleged in these cases are traditional and not necessarily reflective of the "new theories" under the 2023 Merger Guidelines. Additionally, in both cases, the DOJ and FTC show a continued focus on both price and non-price aspects of competition, especially those related to innovation.

Certification of Collective Actions in the CAT

To bring a collective competition action in the Competition Appeal Tribunal ("CAT"), a proposed class representative first has to have their claim certified by the CAT. The CAT's approach to certification is therefore an important issue and has been heavily scrutinised. In this Insight, we look at three recent judgments of the Competition Appeal Tribunal where the CAT has stalled the progression of the claims: Gormsen v Meta Platforms, Inc., Justin Gutmann v Apple Inc., and Commercial and Interregional Card Claims. We consider the factors that led to these decisions, which buck the trend over the last two years of class representatives achieving certification of their claims with relative ease, and set out our thoughts on the key learnings from the judgments.

The Competition Appeal Tribunal has handed down a judgment determining several preliminary issues in the £17 billion collective action brought against Mastercard in relation to anti-competitive multilateral interchange fees, following on from the European Commission's infringement Decision. In this Insight, we discuss the Tribunal's rejection of Mastercard's argument that it could rely on a counterfactual scenario premised on the interchange fees having been set at a lower, lawful level, thereby limiting the claimants' recoverable losses. We consider in particular the Tribunal's ruling that this argument was precluded by the binding effect of the decision, or alternatively, by the argument constituting an abuse of process given that Mastercard did not advance it before the Commission.

Hong Kong Court of Appeal decision on cartel fines imposed on entities within the same undertaking

Competition Commission v W. Hing Construction & others [2022] HKCA 786 (judgment date: 2 June 2022) concerned an appeal from the first Hong Kong judgments concerning pecuniary penalties for contraventions of competition rules. The Court of Appeal held that pecuniary penalties for contraventions of competition rules are to be assessed based on the economic activities and conduct of the undertakings who are answerable for the contraventions, and that the legal or natural persons (entities) constituting such undertakings jointly and severally are liable for the pecuniary penalties. Accordingly, the Court of Appeal allowed the appeals by the Competition Commission (Commission) against two judgments in which the Competition Tribunal (Tribunal) reduced the pecuniary penalties ordered against the respondents in recognition of the respondents' limited participation in the anti-competitive conduct because they h...
