BIOGRAPHY

Nicholas A. Bedo is a member of the firm's Commercial Disputes practice group. He focuses his practice on general and complex commercial litigation across a variety of industries with a concentration on construction and business disputes, including copyright and trademark protections and fiduciary litigation.

Nick regularly assists clients with construction disputes in state and federal courts in Georgia and across the Southeast. He has appeared on behalf of owners, contractors and subcontractors in the development and construction of a variety of projects, including manufacturing and processing plants, liquefaction plants and highway projects. His construction dispute experience includes resolving disputes related to nonpayment, defective construction and defective design.

Nick graduated from the University of Georgia, earning baccalaureate degrees in history and religion, and obtained his J.D. from the Wake Forest School of Law, where he served as an Executive Editor of the Wake Forest Law Review. He also was a member of Wake Forest's Moot Court Board and Wake Forest's National Trial Team, on which he participated as a member of the 2018 National Championship Team. As a student in Wake Forest's Appellate Advocacy Clinic, Nick co-authored an amicus brief filed in the Supreme Court of the United States.

Back to Work: California’s Blueprint for a Safer Economy

On August 28, 2020, Governor Gavin Newsom unveiled a new plan for the reopening of California’s economy following the closures ordered in response to the COVID-19 pandemic, which replaced the county watch list system that was previously in effect. The new plan provides for a four-tier system in which counties must show consistent progress in reducing the transmission of the coronavirus before allowing for greater flexibility in the reopening of businesses, schools, and resuming group activities. The stated intent of the plan is to be “statewide, stringent and slow,” and to impose uniform limits on what businesses can be open depending on a county’s infection rates.
